1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 This Petition and Application arises out of the November 30, 2020 container stow collapse 3 on board the vessel ONE APUS (“Vessel”), which occurred while the Vessel was on a voyage from 4 Yantian, China, to Long Beach, California. The incident resulted in loss of or damage to over 1800 5 cargo containers, with an estimated total value in the tens of millions of dollars. Petitioners and 6 Applicants ROANOKE INSURANCE GROUP, INC. (“ROANOKE”), and W.E. COX CLAIMS 7 GROUP (USA) LLC (“W.E. Cox”) (collectively, “Interested Underwriters”) are insurers of and/or 8 recovery agents for some of the cargo interests which sustained monetary losses due to the container 9 collapse, and have collectively received, or are expected to receive millions of dollars of claims for 10 damage to cargo from their insureds. Because these losses are potentially frequently subject to a 11 contractual or statutory one-year statute of limitations, litigation over this incident is expected to 12 begin in the very near term in various jurisdictions, including Germany, South Korea, Singapore, 13 New York, and before the London Maritime Arbitrators Association, depending on the forum 14 selection clauses of the relevant charters, bills of lading and contracts of carriage.

15 After a long stay in Kobe, Japan, for presumptive repairs and cargo operations, the Vessel is 16 now back in the United States, presently at anchorage in San Francisco Bay or berthed at the Port of 17 Oakland, within this Judicial District. The Vessel is expected to remain within the District until 18 around May 26, 2021, before it departs again for Asia. Because the Vessel’s short presence within 19 the District is an unique opportunity to obtain indispensable discovery for use in the pending and 20 anticipated cargo litigation, and because the vessel will shortly leave the waters of the United States, 21 Interested Underwriters respectfully seek, on an emergency basis, (1) an Order pursuant to Rule 27
 22 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure to preserve testimony and evidence or in the alternative, 23 (2) an Order pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1782 to enable discovery for use in foreign proceedings.
 24 Without an order authorizing the discovery while the Vessel remains within this District, Interested 25 Underwriters’ ability to gather information will be substantially compromised, hampering their 26 ability to recover from liable parties for the subject cargo losses.

1 II. STATEMENT OF FACTS

2 A. The Incident

3 On or around November 30, 2020, the Vessel was in transit from Yantian, China, to Long 4 Beach, California, when it reportedly rolled heavily for unspecified reasons, and lost at least eight 5 hundred forty-three (843) deck containers overboard. Hundreds of other containers collapsed and 6 were damaged on the deck. Declaration of Cynthia Garbrecht in support of the instant Application/7 Petition (“Garbrecht Decl.”) at ¶ 6. After this incident, the Vessel headed to Japan for repairs. Id. at 8 ¶ 7. On information and belief, damaged containers were discharged, transloaded, and the cargo re-9 vanned and re-stowed in Japan for onward carriage to Long Beach. Ibid. The full extent of the cargo 10 losses has yet to be determined.

11 B. Parties and Imminent Foreign Proceedings

12 1. Vessel Interests

13 On information and belief, the Vessel is a Japanese-flagged containership bearing IMO 14 Number 9806079. Garbrecht Decl. at ¶ 4. It is 146,694 gross registered tons, with a capacity of 15 carrying over 14,052 twenty-foot containers. Ibid. On information and belief, the Vessel is owned by 16 Chidori Ship Holding LLC (“Chidori”) and bareboat chartered to Jessica Ship Holdings, S.A., a 17 Panamanian limited liability company (“Jessica”). Id. at ¶ 4. The Vessel is time chartered to an NYK
 18 Line-affiliate, a Japanese company, and sub-time chartered by Ocean Network Express Pte. Ltd 19 (“ONE”), a Singaporean limited liability company. Ibid. NYK Ship Management Pte., Ltd.
 20 (“NYK”), a Singaporean company, manages the Vessel. Id. at ¶ 4. At all relevant times, as owner 21 pro hac vice and manager, respectively, Jessica and NYK had operational control over the day-to-22 day management and navigation of the Vessel, and employed the crew. See Haluapo v. Akashi 23 Kaiun, K.K., 748 F.2d 1363, 1364 (9th Cir. 1984); Walker v. Braus, 995 F.2d 77, 80–81 (5th Cir.
 24 1993) (vessel owner maintains possession and control of the vessel in time charter setting).

25 2. Slot Charterers

26 On information and belief, ONE had a Vessel Sharing Agreement (a “VSA”, otherwise 27 commonly known as a “slot charter” agreement) with three entities: Hapag-Lloyd Aktiengesellschaft 28 (“Hapag-Lloyd”), Hyundai Merchant Marine (“Hyundai”) and Yang Ming Marine Transport

1 Corporation (“Yang Ming”). A VSA is a type of contract enabling these entities to book con-
 2 tainerized cargo onto each other’s vessels. See Request for Judicial Notice in support of instant 3 Application/Petition (“RJN”), and Exhibit JN-3 thereto (Yang Declaration at ¶ 6). Pursuant to the 4 slot charter, Hapag-Lloyd, Hyundai and Yang Ming (collectively, the “Slot Charterers”) booked
 5 cargo space aboard the ONE APUS. Id., Exhibit JN-3 (Yang Declaration at ¶ 6), Exhibit JN-2 6 (Kennedy Declaration at ¶ 6). Every shipment booked with the Slot Charterers for the ONE APUS 7 was governed by a separate bill of lading, setting forth different terms and conditions, including as to 8 the proper jurisdiction for any disputes involving the vessel. See, generally, id., Exhibits JN-1, JN-2, 9 JN-3. On information and belief, the Hapag-Lloyd bill of lading has a Hamburg forum selection 10 clause, the Yang Ming bill of lading has a Southern District of New York forum selection clause for 11 shipments to the US, and the Hyundai bill of lading has a Seoul, South Korea, forum selection
 12 clause. Ibid. On information and belief, the VSA contains an arbitration clause subjecting disputes
 13 between or among the parties to the tribunal of the London Maritime Arbitrators Association 14 (“LMAA”). Accordingly, Interested Underwriters expect litigation in multiple fora relating to these 15 losses.

16 3. Interested Underwriters

17 ROANOKE insured multiple entities with ownership interests in the cargo aboard the ONE 18 APUS at the time of this casualty. Garbrecht Dec. at ¶ 12 and Exhibit 3 thereto. These insured 19 entities have submitted approximately thirty (30) cargo damage and loss claims to Roanoke as a 20 result of the casualty. Ibid. Of these losses, Roanoke has paid $320,000 to date, and approximately 21 twenty-eight (28) claims remain open pending investigation/adjustment. Roanoke’s total indemnity 22 exposure for the claims may exceed $3,000,000. Ibid.

23 W.E. Cox is, and at all times relevant hereto has been, acting as recovery agent for AIG, 24 INC. (“AIG”), Nexus Underwriting (“Nexus”), and XL Catlin (“XL Catlin”), including their respec-25 tive subsidiaries and affiliate entities, with regard to those entities’ claims against the owners and/or 26 operators and/or charterers and/or managers of the Vessel. Declaration of John Olson (“Olson Dec.”) 27 at ¶ 1. AIG, Nexus and XL Catlin insured multiple parties with ownership or similar interests in 28 containerized cargo aboard the ONE APUS at the time of this casualty, and who sustained monetary

1 losses as a result. Olson Dec. at ¶ 4. These insurers have received and/or paid multiple claims for 2 relevant cargo losses, and although their aggregate value is presently unknown, it is estimated to 3 exceed approx. $207,622 for AIG; approx. $166,376 for Nexus; and approx. $11,000 for XL Catlin.

4 As insurers of the lost cargo, Interested Underwriters are and/or will be subrogated to the 5 rights of their insureds against all parties liable for the cargo losses, including but not limited to 6 ONE, NYK, Chidori, Jessica, Hapag-Lloyd, Yang Ming, and Hyundai, and reasonably anticipate 7 filing lawsuits to recover the full extent of their payments to their insureds from such parties.
 8 Garbrecht Dec. at ¶ 13; Olson Dec. at ¶ 8. Documents and information from the Vessel and its crew 9 related to the incident, the vessel, the voyage, the stowage of the containers on the deck, and related 10 policies and procedures, and an inspection of the subject areas of the deck where the collapse 11 occurred are therefore key to allow Interested Underwriters to prosecute claims for recovery for 12 these losses and protect their interests.

13 C. Blocked Prior Efforts to Obtain Discovery

14 The Vessel owners have repeatedly refused requests by Interested Underwriters and, on 15 information and belief, the Slot Charterers, to thoroughly investigate the incident, inspect the Vessel 16 and collect relevant information. Interested Underwriters contacted the Vessel's owners on 17 February 5 and 22, 2021, and again on March 11, 2021, seeking critical documentation relative to 18 the container collapse, or at least confirmation that the documents would be preserved, pending 19 disclosure. Garbrecht Dec. at ¶¶ 9-11 and Exhibits 1&2 thereto. During the more than three (3) 20 months that the Vessel was in Kobe, Japan, Interested Underwriters also requested access for a 21 vessel inspection, to allow their surveyors to investigate the likely cause of the damage and loss.
 22 Ibid. However, ONE ignored the document requests and summarily denied the inspection, using 23 vague concerns over the COVID-19 pandemic as an excuse. Ibid. Of note, the pandemic did not 24 impede ONE from hastily performing repairs on the Vessel, or allowing the Slot Charterers, on 25 information and belief, to perform their own surveys (albeit still unreasonably limited as to time).
 26 See, e.g., RJN, Exhibit JN-3 (Yang Declaration at ¶ 14). The denied discovery, lack of transparent 27 Vessel inspections before any repairs were performed, and the circumstances of the vessel owners' 28

1 handling of the reasonable investigation requests for the largest container collapse incident in 2 maritime history raise legitimate spoliation of evidence concerns.

3 D. The Slot Charterers' Special Actions in the Central District of California

4 In March 2021, the Vessel left Japan and travelled to the Port of Long Beach for scheduled
 5 cargo operations. At that time, the Slot Charterers initiated special actions for emergency discovery 6 (similar to the instant request) in the Central District of California, while the Vessel was at the port.
 7 See, generally, RJN, Exhibits JN-1, JN-2, JN-3. These actions, which raised evidence preservation 8 interests akin to those of Interested Underwriters here due to the difficulties in investigating the 9 circumstances of the loss, resulted in an informal discovery agreement between ONE and the Slot
 10 Charterers. Those proceedings are now formally concluded. See RJN, Exhibit JN-4. As is set forth 11 below, Roanoke did not even know about the proceedings until the Vessel had all but hauled anchor, 12 and though WE Cox did learn of the proceedings while they were pending, neither of Interested 13 Underwriters got the benefit of whatever discovery agreement was reached, or whatever documents 14 and information were produced.

15 E. Jurisdiction and Venue

16 The Vessel left Long Beach on or around April 17, 2021 and is currently idle at temporary 17 anchorage in San Francisco Bay. Garbrecht Dec. at ¶ 14. While the ship's schedule is subject to 18 change, it is expected to shift on May 6th to Oakland Berth 55. Ibid.

19 Once the Vessel and crew leave Oakland, Interested Underwriters will likely be deprived of 20 this practical and reasonable opportunity to take crew depositions, inspect the Vessel, and obtain 21 evidence necessary to protect their interests and those of their insureds for the subject cargo losses in 22 the anticipated proceedings in Singapore, South Korea, New York and Germany. The Vessel is not 23 scheduled to return to the United States until August 2021, completing instead multiple voyages in 24 Asia and South America. RJN, Exhibit JN-5.

25 Even if the crew members who were aboard the ship at the time of the casualty have left the 26 Vessel by now, Interested Underwriters will still need to depose some of the current crew members 27 for relevant information which may provide insights into the owners' procedures, and the handling 28 of the post-casualty investigation process, including as to evidence preservation. Interested Underwriters also need to have a marine surveyor and potentially other experts knowledgeable regarding marine electronic equipment attend on board the Vessel to inspect the cargo loading software and the areas involved in the container collapse, including the location and nature of the repairs performed, all of which are relevant to confirm the facts and circumstances of the incident and identify its cause. Exhibits A through F, appended hereto; see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 34(a) (permitting entry onto a party's property to inspect and copy documents and electronically stored information). Interested Underwriters, assuming the cooperation of the vessel interests, commit to obtain all of this discovery swiftly and without any impact upon the Vessel's cargo operations.

III. ARGUMENT

A. Interested Underwriters Are Entitled to an Order Pursuant to Rule 27

Rule 27 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure¹ provides a mechanism to preserve testimony for use in an action or proceeding not presently pending but expected to be filed in the future. See Ash v. Cort, 512 F.2d 909, 911 (3d Cir.1975). The Rule states, “A person who desires to perpetuate testimony regarding any matter that may be cognizable in any court of the United States may file a verified petition in the United States district court in the district of the residence of any expected adverse party.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 27. The Rule is intended to provide aid for the eventual adjudication of the future suit by affording “a simple ancillary or auxiliary remedy” to obtain discovery, via a special proceeding to which “the usual federal jurisdictional and venue requirements do not apply.” Messeller v. United States, 158 F.2d 380, 382 (2d Cir.1946).

To be successful, a Rule 27 petitioner must demonstrate (1) that it expects to be a party to an action that may be cognizable in any court of the United States but the action is unable to be brought presently; (2) the subject matter of the expected action and the petitioner's interest in such an action; (3) facts which the petitioner seeks to establish through the proposed testimony and the reasons for desiring to perpetuate that testimony at this time; (4) the names or description of the expected adverse parties; and (5) the names and addresses of the witnesses to be examined and the substance

 2 Campania Chilena de Navegacion, 2004 WL 1084243 (E.D.N.Y. Feb. 6, 2004).

3 A proceeding to perpetuate does not require an independent basis of federal jurisdiction, but 4 it must be shown that the contemplated action for which the testimony is being perpetuated would be 5 subject to federal jurisdiction. Dresser Indus. v. United States, 596 F.2d 1231, 1238 (5th Cir.1979).
 6 Proceedings to perpetuate have been recognized as “cognizable” admiralty cases, which are 7 generally subject to federal maritime law. See, e.g., In the Matter of the Application of DEIULEMAR

 19 was about to leave U.S. port); Ferro Union Corp. v. S.S. Ionic Coast, 43 F.R.D. 11, 14 (S.D. Tex.
 20 1967) (allowing depositions, inspection of the vessel and its cargo, and production of requested 21 documents because “[t]o deny discovery here could well mean that the information sought would 22 never be available...”); Koch Fuel Int’l v. M/V SouthStar, 118 F.R.D. 318, 320 (E.D.N.Y. 1987) 23 (“[o]ne of the ‘exceptional circumstances’ in which discovery has been deemed proper is where a 24 vessel with crew members possessing particular knowledge of the dispute is about to leave port”).

25 In circumstances where a vessel was expected to leave the court’s jurisdiction or similar 26 emergencies, courts have granted similar petitions without strict adherence to the twenty-day notice 27 provision of Rule 27. See In re Deiulemar Di Navigazione S.p.A., 153 F.R.D. at 593; In re Petition of 28 Chao, 2008 WL 4471802 (N.D. Iowa Oct. 2, 2008) (allowing two-days’ notice). Strict compliance

1 with Rule 27's notice provision has not been required in such circumstances. See In re Deiulemar Di
 2 Navigazione, supra, 153 F.R.D. at 593.

3 Here, Interested Underwriters have satisfied all the requirements of Rule 27.

4 First, Interested Underwriters expect to be parties to anticipated cargo litigation over the 5 subject container losses, which is expected to occur in multiple fora, including the United States,
 6 depending on the applicable maritime contracts and bills of lading (e.g., Yang Ming bill of lading –
 7 exclusive jurisdiction in the Southern District of New York, U.S.A.; ONE bill of Lading – 8 Singapore; Hyundai bill of lading – South Korea; Hapag-Lloyd – Hamburg, Germany; LMAA under 9 the VSA; etc.). Fed. R. Civ. P. 27(a)(1)(A); see RJD and Exhibits JN-1, JN-2, JN-3 thereto. Rule 27 10 has been read as authorizing pre-lawsuit discovery orders even in cases where the “cognizable” 11 litigation is expected to take place in a state court, foreign court, or arbitration proceeding. Rutter 12 Group Prac. Guide Fed. Civ. Proc. Before Trial (Nat Ed.) Ch. 11(IV)-A; see Application of 13 Deiulemar Compagnia Di Navigazione S.p.A. v. M/V Allegra, supra, 198 F.3d at 479.

14 Second, the subject matter of these expected actions and Underwriters' interests (Fed. R. Civ.
 15 P. 27(a)(1)(B)) are set forth in the supporting Declarations on behalf of Interested Underwriters. See 16 Garbrecht Dec. at ¶ 13; Olson Dec. at ¶ 8. In essence, Interested Underwriters are the insurers of 17 cargo interests whose cargo was lost or damaged aboard the ONE APUS, and have received and 18 have paid or will soon pay multiple claims for these losses. Garbrecht Dec. at ¶¶ 12-13; Olson Dec.
 19 at ¶¶ 4-8. Interested Underwriters anticipate seeking indemnity against all liable parties (to include 20 the vessel owners and involved Slot Charterers) for any damages paid to their insureds as a result of 21 these claims. Interested Underwriters are unable to commence or otherwise participate in those suits 22 now as the adjustment process is still underway. That these future actions are contingent on the 23 outcome of the claims process is enough to satisfy the requirements of Rule 27, which does not 24 require petitioners to show that “cognizable” action is an “absolute certainty.” See Penn Mut. Life
 25 Ins. Co. v. United States, 68 F.3d 1371, 1374 (D.C. Cir. 1995).

26 Third, the requested discovery seeks the preservation of information concerning the cause 27 and circumstances of the container collapse, which will be the basis of the claims against Interested 28 Underwriters, as well as the ultimate inquiry in all the contemplated litigation over the

1 November 30, 2020 incident. Fed. R. Civ. P. 27(a)(1)(C). As shown by the subpoenas submitted
 2 herewith as Exhibits A-F for deposition testimony and inspection of the ONE APUS, the proposed 3 discovery seeks basic information normally collected in similar cases, which is essentially the same 4 as the requests Interested Underwriters sent to the Vessel owners in February and early March of this 5 year (which ONE was quick to reject). Garbrecht Dec. at ¶¶ 9-11 and Exhibits 1&2 thereto. The 6 items and areas of testimony and interest are all standard and necessary equipment and information 7 found on vessels like the ONE APUS. Once the Vessel is out of this Court's jurisdiction, its officers 8 and information may never be locatable again, as the Vessel is not expected to return to the United 9 States until August 2021, most likely with a different crew, after multiple voyages in Asia and 10 Europe. RJN, Exhibit JN-5.

11 Fourth, and as previously noted, Interested Underwriters anticipate filing suit against the 12 various entities potentially liable for petitioners' cargo losses: the Vessel's owners, owners pro hac 13 vice, charterers, operators, and managers, and the Slot Charterers involved in booking insured cargo 14 onto the Vessel's deck for the subject voyage. The following information is known about these 15 entities:

16 (a) ONE, which is present within this District by virtue of the vessel ONE APUS's presence 17 here, is also expected to be a Defendant in Interested Underwriters' anticipated subroga-18 tion actions relative to the incident. ONE lists its main address on its website as 7 Straits 19 View, #16-01 Marina One East Tower, Singapore 018936. ONE was represented by 20 California attorney Alan Nakazawa of Collier Walsh Nakazawa LLP, One World Trade 21 Center, Suite 1860, Long Beach, CA 90831 in the Slot Charterers' special actions in the 22 Central District of California.

23 (b) Yang Ming is also expected to be a Defendant in Interested Underwriters' anticipated 24 subrogation actions relative to the incident. Yang Ming was represented by Galin G. Luk
 25 and Thomas M. Fedeli of COX WOOTTON LERNER, GRIFFIN & HANSEN LLP, 26 900 Front Street, Suite 350, San Francisco, CA 94111 in the Slot Charterers' special 27 actions in the Central District of California.

1 (c) Hyundai is also expected to be a Defendant in Interested Underwriters' anticipated subro-2 gation actions relative to the incident. In the Slot Charterers' special actions in the 3 Central District of California, Hyundai was represented by John D. Giffin and Connor M.
 4 Trafton of KEEBAL, YOUNG & LOGAN, 450 Pacific Avenue, San Francisco, CA 5 94133.

6 (d) Hapag-Lloyd is also expected to be a Defendant in Interested Underwriters' anticipated 7 subrogation actions relative to the incident. In the Slot Charterers' special actions in the 8 Central District of California, Hapag Lloyd was represented by Philip Lempriere of 9 Schwabe, Williamson & Wyatt, P.C., 1420 5th Avenue, Suite 3400, Seattle, WA 98101.

10 Fifth, Interested Underwriters seek to depose the Vessel's Master, Chief Mate and Chief 11 Engineer, as well as custodians of Records for Jessica and Chidori. See Exhibits A through F, 12 attached hereto. These officers are reasonably expected to testify, inter alia, as to the circumstances 13 immediately prior to the container collapse, the location of the affected area on the deck, the post-14 incident investigation as to the cause, any immediate remedial actions, the condition of the Vessel/15 area before the incident, and policies and procedures regarding deck container stowage and vessel 16 loading. Even if the officers currently aboard the Vessel were not serving at the time of the collapse, 17 as the highest ranking deck and engineering officers aboard, they are the best witnesses presently 18 available within this District to testify about the information, documents and things sought to be 19 preserved, and are expected to have relevant knowledge of ONE's policies and procedures 20 surrounding the loading and stowage of deck containers, and any recent changes thereto, all of which 21 are within the permissible scope of discovery in accordance with Rule 26(b)(1).

22 Finally, it should be noted that ONE has already allowed the Slot Charterers more access to 23 the Vessel and information about this loss than Interested Underwriters have had, not only because 24 ONE allowed some of them to inspect the Vessel in Japan, albeit briefly, but presumably also by 25 virtue of the discovery agreement with ONE entered into at the conclusion of the Central District 26 special actions. See RJN, Exhibit JN-4.

1 B. In the Alternative, Interested Underwriters Are Entitled to an Order Enabling 2 Discovery for Use in a Foreign Proceeding under 28 U.S.C. § 1782.

3 In the alternative, Interested Underwriters seek discovery pursuant to the provisions of 4 28 U.S.C. § 1782 for use in the anticipated foreign litigation proceedings against the Vessel
 5 ownership interests and Slot Charterers in Singapore, South Korea and Germany, per the applicable 6 bills of lading. Three elements must be satisfied before 28 USC § 1782 may be invoked: (a) the 7 person from whom discovery is sought resides, or can be found, in the district where the application 8 is made, (b) the discovery is for use in a proceeding before a foreign tribunal, and (c) the application
 9 is made by a foreign or international tribunal or “any interested person.” In re Dubey, 949 F.Supp.2d 10 990, 992 (C.D. Cal. 2013); see also 28 U.S.C. § 1782(a). In addition to the statutory requirements, 11 discretionary factors must also weigh in favor of granting the application. Intel Corp. v. Advanced 12 Micro Devices, Inc., 542 U.S. 241, 263 (2004); see Ex Parte Application of Qualcomm Inc., 162
 13 F.Supp.3d 1029, 1035 (N.D. Cal. 2016).

14 1. The Application meets the statutory requirements for § 1782 discovery

15 Interested Underwriters are undoubtedly “interested persons” under the meaning of § 1782 in 16 the anticipated foreign proceedings to recover in connection with the subject cargo losses. The U.S.
 17 Supreme Court has acknowledged that the term “interested person” should be interpreted broadly, 18 and includes both litigants and other parties who possess a reasonable interest in obtaining judicial 19 assistance. Intel, supra, 542 U.S. at 256–57. Although they are not parties to the relevant maritime 20 contracts and bills of lading, Interested Underwriters are and/or will become subrogated to the rights 21 of their insureds who have liability claims against ONE and the Slot Charterers for the loss of or 22 damage to their cargo on the ONE APUS. Thus, under the circumstances, Interested Underwriters 23 are indisputably an “interested person” within the meaning of § 1782.

24 The requested discovery is intended for use in a proceeding in a foreign or international 25 tribunal. The foreign proceeding for which a court may authorize discovery need not be “pending or 26 imminent,” but simply “within reasonable contemplation.” Intel, supra, 542 U.S. at 259. Although 27 “[t]he future proceedings must be more than speculative,” it suffices that the district court has 28 sufficient indication that a foreign proceeding “would eventuate in which the evidence gathered can

1 be weighed impartially.” See In re Consorcio Ecuatoriano de Telecomunicaciones S.A. v. JAS
 2 Forwarding (USA) Inc., 747 F.3d 1262, 1270 (11th Cir. 2014). Here, the anticipated recovery 3 actions in Singapore, South Korea and Germany on behalf of Interested Underwriters meet these 4 criteria.

5 Lastly, the Vessel (and hence the documents and evidence onboard) is currently in San 6 Francisco Bay. Therefore, the persons from whom the discovery is sought are and will be found 7 within this district.

8 2. The § 1782 discretionary factors also weigh in favor of granting the Application

9 To determine whether discovery should be permitted, the Court should consider the 10 following non-exhaustive factors: (1) whether the person from whom discovery is sought is a 11 participant in the foreign proceeding; (2) the nature and character of the foreign proceeding, and 12 whether the foreign court is receptive to judicial assistance from the United States; (3) whether the 13 discovery request is an attempt to avoid foreign evidence-gathering restrictions; and (4) whether the 14 discovery request is “unduly intrusive or burdensome.” Intel, 542 U.S. at 264–66. “The district court 15 [is] not required to address explicitly every factor or argument, nor [is] it required to issue a written 16 order.” Akebia Therapeutics, Inc. v. Fibrogen, Inc., 793 F.3d 1108, 1112 (9th Cir. 2015) (citing 17 United States v. Sealed 1, 235 F.3d 1200, 1206 (9th Cir. 2000) (noting the broad discretion afforded 18 the district courts under § 1782 and the lack of specific guidance with which to exercise that 19 discretion)).

20 Starting with the first factor, the need for § 1782 assistance is of particular importance when 21 the entity from whom discovery is sought is a non-party in the underlying foreign proceeding:
 22 “nonparticipants in the foreign proceeding may be outside the foreign tribunal’s jurisdictional reach; 23 hence, their evidence, available in the United States, may be unobtainable absent § 1782(a) aid.”
 24 Intel, 542 U.S. at 264. Here, the Vessel and its registered owners/owners pro hac vice may not be 25 parties to Interested Underwriters’ suits outside of Singapore, due to the Singapore forum selection 26 clause in ONE’s standard bill of lading and potential lack of personal jurisdiction: the Vessel is 27 Japanese-flagged, its registered owner is Japanese, its bareboat charterer is Panamanian, its manager 28 is a Singaporean company, and the crew is likely to include individuals of multiple different

1 jurisdictions. As such, the anticipated tribunals of Germany, South Korea, etc. pursuant to the Slot
 2 Charterers' bills of lading would not be able to compel the Vessel or its owners, managers, and crew 3 to produce the requested documents or testimony in connection with the cargo damage claims.
 4 Absent an order from this Court permitting the requested document, deposition and inspection
 5 subpoenas, Interested Underwriters may therefore lose their sole opportunity to procure critical 6 evidence for use in the foreign litigation proceedings.

7 The second factor takes into account the "nature of the foreign tribunal, the character of the 8 proceedings abroad, and the receptivity of the foreign court to U.S. federal-court judicial assistance." 9 Intel, 542 U.S. at 264. "When evaluating whether foreign tribunals would accept U.S. assistance, 10 courts look for authoritative proof that a foreign tribunal would reject evidence obtained with the aid 11 of section 1782." Siemens AG v. W. Digital Corp., No. 8:13-CV-01407-CAS, 2013 WL 5947973, at 12 *3 (C.D. Cal. Nov. 4, 2013). The burden of demonstrating that the foreign tribunal would be unre-
 13 ceptive to the evidence rests with the party opposing the application. See In re Bayer AG, 146 F.3d
 14 188, 196 (1998); see also In re Owl Shipping, LLC, No. CIV.A. 14-5655 AET, 2014 WL 5320192, 15 at *2 (D.N.J. Oct. 17, 2014). Here, there is no allegation and certainly no "authoritative proof" that 16 the courts of South Korea or Germany would reject the evidence Interested Underwriters seek.

17 Under the third discretionary factor, the Court needs to weigh if the § 1782 request "conceals 18 an attempt to circumvent foreign proof-gathering restrictions or other policies of a foreign country or 19 the United States." Intel, 542 U.S. at 265. Courts concentrate on the apparent motivation for the 20 request and not on foreign discovery rules that parties seldom have on hand. E.g., In re: Application 21 of Joint Stock Co. Raiffeisenbank, No. 16-MC-80203-MEJ, 2016 WL 6474224, at *6 (N.D. Cal.
 22 Nov. 2, 2016). Section 1782 does not contain a requirement that the information sought be 23 discoverable under the law governing the foreign proceeding. Mak v. For the Issuance of Discovery
 24 in ex rel. Foreign Proceeding Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. 1782, 2012 WL 2906761 (N.D. Cal. July 16, 25 2012). Interested Underwriters are not in any way attempting to violate proof-gathering principles 26 and rules in any of the multiple jurisdictions where their contemplated recovery actions would be 27 brought; to the contrary, they seek the requested discovery on an emergency basis to prevent the 28 further loss of evidence that will result if the Vessel and its crew are allowed to depart this Court's

1 jurisdiction before an inspection is performed and documents and depositions are obtained. Further, 2 under the afore-cited authority, even if Interested Underwriters obtain more evidence than would be 3 ordered in any of the contemplated foreign proceedings, § 1782 discovery would still be warranted.

4 The final Intel factor contemplates whether the discovery is “unduly intrusive or burden-5 some.” Intel, 542 U.S. at 265. In assessing this factor, district courts apply the standards of Rule 26.
 6 Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(1); see, e.g., MetaLab Design Ltd. v. Zoji Int'l, Inc., No. 17-MC-80153-MEJ,
 7 2018 WL 368766, at *4 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 11, 2018) (concluding that the petitioner’s discovery request 8 was overbroad under the standards of Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(1)); Mees v. Buitier, 793 F.3d 291, 302 9 (2d Cir. 2015) (“[A] district court evaluating a § 1782 discovery request should assess whether the 10 discovery sought is overbroad or unduly burdensome by applying the familiar standards of Rule 26 11 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.”). Under Rule 26, “Parties may obtain discovery regarding 12 any non-privileged matter that is relevant to any party’s claim or defense and proportional to the 13 needs of the case.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(1). Proportionality depends, in part, on “whether the burden 14 or expense of the proposed discovery outweighs its likely benefit.” Id. Moreover, “the court should 15 be particularly wary of denying [§ 1782] discovery on relevance grounds.” See In re Application
 16 Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. Section 1782 for an Order Permitting Christen Sveaas to Take Discovery
 17 from Dominique Levy, L & M Galleries & other non-participants for use in Actions Pending in the 18 Norway, 249 F.R.D. 96, 107 (S.D.N.Y. 2008) (finding it “inappropriate” to deny a § 1782 applica-19 tion on relevance grounds “[g]iven the broadly permissive standard by which a court evaluates the 20 relevance of discoverable material, and the parties’ presentation of a factual dispute regarding the 21 relevance of the discovery sought.”). As previously noted, the proposed subpoenas set forth a limited 22 number of documents maintained in the normal course of business and are directly relevant to the 23 anticipated cargo claims against the Vessel owners and Slot Charterers. The requested depositions of 24 only a few key, high-ranking Vessel officers are similarly limited in scope, and will streamline 25 Interested Underwriters’ investigation, by narrowing down the types of available evidence for 26 inspection and copying. If the crew members are not deposed promptly while the Vessel remains in 27 the Court’s jurisdiction, they are likely to leave the ship and forever be unavailable to offer indispen-28 sable witness testimony relating to the incident. The Vessel inspection will allow identification and

1 preservation of key evidence from the ship before her owners attempt further repairs of the affected
2 areas, possibly further destroying relevant evidence. To minimize any disruption to cargo operations
3 while the Vessel is in port, Interested Underwriters plan to immediately provide this Court's order
4 and the subpoenas to the attorneys for the Vessel owner, so depositions can be taken while the ship 5 is sitting idle.

6 Accordingly, all Intel factors weigh in favor of granting this § 1782 application.

7 IV. CONCLUSION

8 Once the ONE APUS departs this Court's jurisdiction, it will not return to the U.S. for 9 several months. When it does, it is fair to expect that it will be staffed by a different crew lacking 10 intimate knowledge of the events of the subject container collapse, who may have been operating 11 under different company rules and procedures than were in effect when the casualty occurred. Under 12 the circumstances, this may be Interested Underwriters' only opportunity to collect the evidence 13 needed to protect their rights in the anticipated cargo claim suits in South Korea, Singapore, 14 Germany and the Southern District of New York. Interested Underwriters are only advancing 15 reasonably limited requests for testimony of key officers, collection of key documents and informa-16 tion that are standard for incidents involving containerships like the ONE APUS, and an expert 17 inspection of relevant areas to assess the cause of loss. Whether under Fed. R. Civ. P. Rule 27 or 28
18 U.S.C. § 1782, Interested Underwriters respectfully request that this Court grant the proposed 19 discovery on an emergency basis, to enable Interested Underwriters to obtain it in the short few days 20 that the Vessel remains in its jurisdiction.

ATTORNEY VERIFICATION

I, Jonathan W. Thames, hereby declare as follows:

1. I am the attorney for the Applicants/Petitioners and I am authorized to make this Verification on their behalf.

2. I have read the foregoing Application/Petition and the contents thereof are true and accurate to the best of my knowledge, information and belief.

3. The reason that this Verification was made by me and not the Applicants/Petitioners is that the both of them are legal entities, and none of them have officers present in this District.

4. The source of my knowledge is information and records furnished to me by the Applicants/Petitioners and their respective representatives, all of which I believe to be true and accurate.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America and the State of California that the foregoing statements are true and correct.

Executed in San Francisco, California this 3rd day of May, 2021.
